

BENGAL RENEISSANCE

19th century to 1st half of 20th century

INTRODUCTION

- The Bengal Renaissance was a period of social, cultural, intellectual, and religious reform in Bengal.
- It began in the late 18th century and flourished during the 19th century.
- Influenced by Western education, scientific thinking, and traditional Indian values.
- Centered mainly in Kolkata (then Calcutta).

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

- British rule introduced modern education and new ideas.
- Establishment of schools, colleges, and printing presses.
- Interaction between Indian traditions and Western thought.
- Rise of a new educated middle class

CAUSES OF THE BENGAL RENAISSANCE

- Spread of English education.
- Growth of newspapers and literature.
- Influence of European Enlightenment ideas.
- Social and religious reform movements.
- Development of communication and printing technology.

RAJA RAMMOHAN ROY

- – Father of the Bengal Renaissance Raja Rammohan Roy was a leading social reformer.
- Founded the Brahmo Samaj in 1828.
- Opposed the practice of Sati.
- Advocated women's rights and modern education.

MAJOR REFORMERS

- Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar promoted widow remarriage. Expanded women's education.
- Keshab Chandra Sen continued religious and social reforms.
- Michael Madhusudan Dutt modernized Bengali literature.

LITERARY AND CULTURAL CONTRIBUTIONS

- Growth of modern Bengali literature.
- Development of newspapers and journals.
- New forms of poetry, drama, and prose. Promotion of art, music, and cultural expression.

RABINDRANATH TAGORERABINDRANATH

- Tagore was one of the greatest figures of the Renaissance.
- Won the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1913.
- Contributed to literature, music, education, and philosophy.
- Founded Visva-Bharati University.

IMPACT ON SOCIETY

- Improvement in women's status.
- Expansion of modern education.
- Growth of scientific thinking.
- Rise of nationalism and political awareness.
- Challenge to social evils and superstitions.

SIGNIFICANCE

- Laid the foundation for modern Indian society.
- Encouraged freedom of thought and expression.
- Influenced social reform movements across India.
- Inspired future nationalist leaders.

CONCLUSION

- The Bengal Renaissance transformed Bengali society through education, reform, and cultural development.
- It played a crucial role in shaping modern India.
- Its legacy continues in literature, education, and social progress.

THANK YOU

- Thank you.